JFM Breaks Ground for George Robert Jones Production Plant

Jones Feed Mills is excited to announce that on July 11, 2018, at its Linwood location, Jeff Jones, President, Jones Feed Mills, confirmed in front of a gathering of JFM staff, area politicians, financiers and contractors that the construction of a new, high capacity production plant. This new mill will be built adjacent to its new office facility in Linwood. That day, a ground-breaking ceremony was held where Jeff Jones announced that the new mill would be named the George Robert Jones Production Plant in memory of his father and second-generation owner, along with his wife, Jean of the Jones Feed Mills business. During his address, Jeff commented, "The investment in this mill will better position Jones Feed Mills within the industry while it continues to demonstrate our commitment to our customers by bringing them quality feed at a fair price."

The new mill is now under construction and will be updated through upcoming JFM newsletters.

Jones Welcome Mike Martin to Production Team

JFM is excited to introduce Mike Martin...

My name is Mike Martin. Jones Feed Mills was one of my first part-time jobs in high school at the age of 17. Since those days I have explored other industries but have found my way back to the world of feed. As of this summer, JFM has brought me on to manage production at the Linwood location. The role is exciting and provides challenges that require creativity and ingenuity. Jones Feed Mills is going to see some big changes with the addition of the new mill. My business experience, combined with my millwright and packaging industry work, provide me with insight into operational and equipment efficiencies. I was part of the great team that built the JFM premix plant and helped start it into operation. My new role at Jones allows me to integrate my experiences into an already diverse team of experts. I look forward to the challenge and working with the team to grow and succeed. I am an Elmira native, currently residing in Waterloo. When not at Jones, you will commonly find me playing slo-pitch, volleyball and especially golf during the summer months. I'm no PGA pro, and proudly I can say to date I haven't broken a club over my knee. This summer I have expanded my other hobby of enjoying cooking up Black Creek meat products on the BBQ. The family atmosphere at Jones has been very welcoming. I look forward to providing insight and solutions to our production operations here in Linwood. Most customers may never meet me face to face, but I will be working hard as part of the Jones team to make sure you receive the best product and service possible.

Horse Sweating?

Is your horse working up a sweat? Water follows sodium in the body, and sodium is key for maintaining hydration and fluid volume in the horses' body. When sodium is lost in sweat, it needs to be replenished. Along with a proper balanced diet, JFM suggests always offering free choice salt in your horse's stall and pasture. As always, for more information on feeding and caring for your horse, contact Sarah Stewart at 519-501-8853.
