John Penninga joins Black Creek Livestock

Black Creek Livestock, a division of Jones Feed Mills, is excited to announce that John Penninga has recently joined Black Creek in the role of Production Supervisor. John, who has lived and farmed his entire life in the Fergus area, started out with aspirations of being a dairy farmer. However, once John married his wife Fran, who is the daughter of a pig farmer, his life-choice of livestock changed. Over the last 16 years he and Fran owned and managed a 750 SEW barn which was a nucleus herd for Hypor Genetics where they bred seven distinct genetic lines. This herd would eventually move to Saskatchewan where John and Fran then ran a multiplier herd for Hypor. Later they changed their focus to raising commercial pigs for Synergy. In his role with Black Creek, John is a member of the Production Supervisor Team and will focus on gilt and sow management. Paul Pletsch, Manager of Black Creek comments, "I am quite impressed with John's extensive knowledge and obvious passion for pig farming. John is eager to learn and will work well with the Black Creek team. The Black Creek program will certainly benefit from John's input." John and Fran have been married for almost 17 years and have four "wonderful" children. All of the staff at Black Creek Livestock and Jones Feed Mills welcome John to the team!

A-Moozing Hints

By Lisa Zieleman, JFM Calf Specialist

Heat stress is not good for anyone or any animals. Keeping them cool when the sun is shining and the temperatures are high is a struggle! Here is a handy hint to help keep calves cooler when housed in hutches (both inside and outside).

Try elevating the hutches with either a large brick or large block (as shown in the photo) underneath the back of the hutch. This creates air flow and pushes the hot air up so cooler air can come in. This will help keep calves cool and reduce heat stress.

The Calf Bawl

The June/July 2018 Calf BAWL by Lisa Zieleman is soon available. Ask your Dairy Rep for your copy.

Which one of these cows is heat stressed?

Don't forget the Dry Cows!

If you answered "both", you are correct. Heat stress begins to effect dairy cattle at a THI (Temperature Humidity Index) of 68. A 68 THI is created when the temperature is 22°C and humidity is at 50%.

Blue Line is a unique product consisting of a combination of key ingredients that help keep your cows hydrated. To beat the heat this summer, talk to a Jones Dairy Sales Consultant about Blue Line along with management aids and practices that will keep your cows in the cool!
