Tips to Help Prepare for Your Corn Silage Harvest

With corn silage season fast approaching, following are a few reminders that may help you with a successful harvest...

1. Now is a good time to review the ventilation at the base of your tower silos to ensure gases will not linger at silo filling time. Safe Harvest = Good Harvest
2. Take a sample of your current silage and show it to your JFM representative to review cut length and kernel processing. Discuss any necessary changes with your custom operator or your equipment operators.
3. Review what your total 2021 corn silage inventory was and calculate how long it will last. Discuss your remaining inventory with your JFM rep to determine your 2022-2023 needs. Making any required ration adjustments right at the time of harvest will possibly save you money if needing any replacements for corn silage further into the year.
4. Identify the ideal harvest time regarding moisture content with your JFM representative. This worth-while conversation will assist you in optimizing feed value and nutrient levels.
5. Check with your seed corn supplier as to which inoculant is best for the seed varieties you planted. Discuss targeted harvest dates, storage, and fermentation targets.
6. If needing to feed your silage before it is fully fermented (corn silage can take up to 3-4 months to fully ferment), be sure to have your silage tested for its nutrients and dry matter at least one week prior to feeding to ensure it can be used to its potential.
7. If you have your own harvester, reviewing your service needs now, including ledger plates and cutting knives can save you time once harvest begins.

High Pathogenic Avian Influenza (HPAI) Early Fall 2022 Update

Avian Influenza (aka Bird Flu), although not as much as a news item currently, continues to be a threat to Ontario Agriculture as we approach the fall, as fall is when migratory birds begin to venture south of the winter. On the advice of OMAFRA (08/22), Jones Feed Mills continues to take the necessary precautions to help reduce the spread of the virus. Precautionary measures include, but are not restricted to, disinfecting all incoming supplier vehicles, disinfecting all feed delivery vehicles upon arrival to our customers farms, disinfecting all JFM sales and service vehicles when arriving at farms that house poultry. All personnel entering any Jones facilities must also use disinfecting foot mats to disinfect their feet before entering any JFM facility (including offices). JFM will continue to use these precautions until otherwise instructed by CFIA, OMAFRA, The Feather Board and Chicken Farmers Ontario. For more information on Avian Influenza, prevention measures or JFM's approach to managing this situation, please call Jones Feed Mills at 1-800-265-8735.
